Stephanie Garcia, Krystna Gonzalez, Katherine Jackson, Kayla Ivey, Lin Zhang, and Marcus McClary will be presenting at the Southwest American College of Sports Medicine Conference, which promotes the integration of education and practical application, and is an ideal hands-on learning experience that only occurs once each year. In addition, this is an excellent opportunity for students to gain both networking and public speaking experience. Allowing each of the students to prepare and present their previously conducted research is also critical to the further development of their academic and research careers.
